

CART and C-Print Services

Both CART and C-Print services convert the spoken word into text, appearing as live captions and also creating a written transcription of an entire class, meeting, or event that your business can provide to attendees after the session.

Communication Access Real-Time Translation (CART)

A conversation or proceeding is transcribed simultaneously word-for-word

Our professional CART interpreters type spoken words using a machine similar to the stenotype machine used in courtroom reporting. Real-time software converts it to text to be displayed on a monitor, tablet, smart phone, or projected onto a screen.

- ✓ CART services are popular in setting such as classrooms, courtrooms, meetings, workshops, and conferences creating an inclusive environment for deaf and hard-of-hearing participants.
- ✓ For online meetings, CART stands out as a superior choice, offering captions that are significantly more accurate than the auto-generation tools typically found in video conferencing platforms.
- ✓ Onsite and remote transcribing is available.

C-Print

The conversation is summarized simultaneously.

A summary of a conversation or lecture, rather than providing word-for-word transcription. C-Print is essentially an electronic note-taking system.

- ✓ C-Print services are popular in setting such as classrooms, lecture halls, business and governmental meetings, and any setting where an in-person interpreter is not available, or where multiple speakers and noise may be an issue for other services.
- ✓ Onsite and remote transcribing is available.

CART and C-Print Services are ADA Compliant

CART and C-Print services are innovative and cost-effective ways to ensure that all students and event attendees can follow along with the rest of the group. These services are ADA-recognized accommodations for deaf and hard-of-hearing persons, and can also be beneficial for those who are less fluent and have difficulty keeping up with a presenter. Additionally, the ability to provide a written transcript is helpful to all attendees, regardless of their language abilities.
